

induced isolation.

The PIX Welcome Dinner on the evening of Sunday May 15 was a lively event and the first opportunity to catch up with industry friends.

It was also an opportunity to recognise the many sponsors of the event as PIX President Peter Mathews, incoming President Sarah Haberecht and Agrifutures (PIX Treasurer) Rachelle Osmond handed out recognition plaques to sponsors delegates.

Geoff Runge, whose enduring association with PIX is well known, presented the Lindsey Bell Award for the 2022 conference to Margaret Sexton whose contribution to the industry over her long career certainly deserves recognition.

The Red Carpet entrance to the PIX Conference dinner the following night was celebrated with colourful outfits and overworked flash cameras.

The trade exhibition is always a major focus of the AMC/PIX and now Sunpork event.

Despite international travel being fraught with many challenges as airlines try to return to some form of normality, there were plenty of overseas visitors who gave presentations in the conference sessions and attended the trade exhibition.

In the long period since the last AMC/PIX in 2018, there have been a number of new entrants into the poultry sector.

Many of the familiar faces were present at the 2022 gathering though some now have a different business card!

1. Luigi Di Clemente, on the FarmMark Santrev stand. 2. Tugrul Durali and David Graham, Avian Management Services. 3. Brodie Roberts and Dave Roberts, Think Livestock. 4. Ruby Gough and Kate West, Santrev. 5. Dominic Elfick, Aviagen Asia. 6. Ben van Delden, KPMG.